Inge (Steve) works as a barrow boy at Wigan fruit and vegetable wholesale market. He has pushed his barrow willingly, and pushed at everything else in more ways than one since he left big school.

But hey ho....! He's just young and enjoying life to the full. Defiantly not a morning person and hates getting out of bed before the milkman and the Lark!

He honestly didn't realize everything was going to be so hard. Capriciously walking his tightrope and desperately balancing work and his typically never-ending, crazy social life, is pretty hard going. Even for the best of us in the dangerous & dodgy 80's. With its never-ending pit-falls and a multitude of ups and downs to overcome.

It would be so much easier being a famous pop star. After all, he can play one or two chords on a keyboard and even hold a tune. And why not, everybody's doing that in the 1980's aren't they?

But even so, until he ever gets there, he's decided this 'life' stuff's really quite good fun.

Maybe if he just knuckles down, and grabs the bull by the horns. He might just break through all the barriers forever holding him back. But there's so many of them? The brother, the mother, the girlfriend, the others. And where's this notorious bull to grab anyway?

It would enormously help, if he could just try to keep himself out of the local pub and all those nightclubs long enough to focus on something? The Market customers aren't much help either. Or the Good and Evil Tempters sitting invisibly on his shoulders and squatting inside his head.

In fact, there's so many things stopping him reaching his full potential. Not least himself!

But what the hell! Despite of everything, he's on a very interesting journey.

Full of fun and fear, and love and beer.

Joy and pain and sunshine and rain.

But then - learning life's like that sometimes...!

Authors Note;

The Market Lads and Me, is fond recollections and happy memories of a week in my life in the early 80's working at Wigan wholesale fruit & vegetable market.

The writing is based on real people, real lives and real events....
and a little bit of tomfoolery
