The Extraordinary Adventures of Arsène Lupin, Gentleman Burglar Maurice Leblanc

The Extraordinary Adventures of Arsène Lupin, Gentleman-Burglar is a collection of nine stories chronicling the exploits of the one of the most irresistibly charming thieves in literary history Arsène Lupin. These are the first stories Maurice Leblanc published about the dashing burglar, though many other Arsène Lupin publications would follow. Arsène Lupin is an unconventional protagonist, one who subverts the law but who heroically helps others in the process. This collection of stories begins with The Arrest of Arsène Lupin. Subsequent stories chronicle his time in prison, his daring escape, and detail further escapades by the lovable rogue. The final story, entitled Sherlock Holmes Comes Too Late is the first of several stories that intertwine the pursuits of these two legendary characters. All in all, LeBlanc wrote 20 volumes in the Arsène Lupin series. Though the Lupin stories are not as well-known as the Holmes stories, they are well-regarded and considered classics. Many of the Lupin stories have been adapted as plays, films, comics, and television performances. Leblanc's tales have spawned numerous literary pastiches, including various novels, Japanese manga comics, and many stories devoted to Lupin's continuing saga.
