Esta obra colectiva analiza la afectación al sistema de protección de los derechos humanos ante una sociedad globalizada, de una estructura económica injusta, originada por las concentraciones financieras, tecnológicas, de capitales y de recursos humanos a escala global, para obtener mayores beneficios económicos; situación en la que el Estado, sin duda, tiene un papel decisivo.

Los autores reunidos son expertos provenientes de diversas universidades del país y de distintas áreas del conocimiento, como del derecho constitucional, la economía, el derecho laboral, los derechos humanos, la ciencia política, la administración de justicia, los estudios latinoamericanos, las ciencias de la administración, el turismo, la sociología política y el derecho privado.

Algunos de los temas en torno a los cuales reflexionan son los siguientes: las reformas constitucionales a la protección de los derechos humanos mediante la constitucionalización del derecho internacional, el derecho a la alimentación, la discriminación laboral, la violación al acceso de las comunicaciones, la protección de datos, el derecho al esparcimiento, los derechos humanos de los extranjeros, la violencia y la dignidad, la autonomía universitaria, la desaparición forzada de persona, el desarrollo sustentable, los sistemas de protección de los derechos humanos y el derecho al honor.
