Grace McClaine's college house needed a new roommate, but they procrastinated. Now they're getting one alright...an unknown Dane via Craigslist.com.

THANK YOU, CRAIGSLIST is a warm and witty novel about post-college confusion and first love dysfunction, heartache and raw vulnerability. It centers around a girl tangled between two relationships—the comfortable, predictable one with the man who shared her innocence, and the gentle, deeper beginning with the man who could come next—and trying to figure out who she is, what she wants, and how to get it. A Danish stranger, a bit of mystery, and a splash of immorality—sometimes the right answer is found by doing the wrong thing.

It was written for twenty somethings, but can also appeal to anyone who's ever lived abroad, befriended a stranger, or had a love they just couldn't seem to shake. Weaving the histories of two characters, Grace McClaine the American and Sven Andersen the Dane, between the present-day narrative of their budding friendship with each other, it's a coming-of-adulthood tale that asks, "When it comes to life and love, how can you know what is right, what is wrong, if you've only ever known one thing?"
